GOLF HOLIDAYS 2007-2008

SUNRIDGE CANYON GOLF COURSE SCOTTSDALE, ARIZONA

Playing Golf at SunRidge Canyon in Scottsdale is the way the game was intended. Its natural, strategic desert design is tempting for players of every level and it is a true "adventure", where subtle changes in topography give the course a dramatic effect. Each shot demands careful consideration of both risk and reward, and your success depends entirely on how skilfully you make these decisions.

Designed by Keith Foster, SunRidge Canyon Golf Club is a 6,823-yard, par-71 layout with non-returning nines. Your golf adventure begins at the upper mouth of the canyon and descends, switch-back style, to the canyon floor. Along the way, the golf course follows the rugged natural terrain of stony ridges, rock outcroppings and secluded hollows. Because the fairways are not parallel, players enjoy a true sense of serenity and oneness with the golf course. Don't let this tranquil desert setting fool you. This course's rare beauty tests every aspect of your game.

The 17th Hole at SunRidge Canyon is truly one of a kind. Only here can a golfer play a 209-yard par three over a boxed canyon one day, then play a 152-yard par three off an elevated tee the next day. The architect, Keith Foster, actually happened upon the elevated tee shot during the construction of the course. Foster arrived at what would soon be the Canyon set of tees. He loved the way the hole set up and the incredible views it would eventually provide golfers. Walking some 300 yards along the mountain ridge that borders the hole, he came to an elevated point on the ridge. It was there he discovered a second area that presented an equally spectacular view of the surrounding mountains, yet set up dramatically different from the Canyon set of tees. From the Canyon Tees, the 17th's massive green sits as a 7,000-square-foot target which is accessible only after carrying a 50-foot-deep, 100-yard-wide box canyon. From the SunRidge Tees, the diminutive green sits as a 3,000-square-foot target with a wide open shot off an elevated tee box and no forced carries. The hole's unique horseshoe-shaped green lends itself to receiving shots from either tee box and presents golfers with challenging putts from either direction.

SunRidge has enhanced the overall golf experience at the course by adding a ProLink GPS system. Each cart features a full-colour monitor which is easy to use and features scoring, yardage to the pin, suggested club selection and playing tips. You can even order your lunch from the fairway!
